Revolutionary Stem Cell Treatment Center Opens in Scottsdale

SCOTTSDALE, AZ -- (Marketwire) -- 05/27/15 -- For patients suffering from moderate to severe degenerative joint disease and "bone-on-bone" osteoarthritis, a revolutionary nonsurgical treatment is now available as an alternative to arthroscopic and joint replacement surgery.

Regenerative Injection Therapy (RIT) is a cutting-edge biomedical treatment now offered at Source of Health medical center (SOH) in Scottsdale. Founding physician Steven Sorr, M.D., strongly recommends patients explore the benefits of this transformational new treatment before considering surgery.

"If you or a loved one have been recommended for complete or total joint replacement surgery, first consider the SOH Natural Joint Rejuvenation Program," says Dr. Sorr.

Also known as Prolotherapy, RIT uses amniotic stem cell technology that stimulates the body to heal and repair itself. Unlike anti-inflammatory and narcotic pain medications, cortisone injections, nerve ablation or viscosupplementation injections (such as Rooster Comb), RIT actually treats the cause of the pain rather than just providing temporary, symptomatic relief.

"Most of my patients are already in chronic pain and have tried other injection options. Having an option that requires less shots over the course of six to nine months with the benefit of healing and rejuvenating tissue is a very attractive alternative," Dr. Sorr explains. "This treatment has already proven to be highly effective in treating severe injuries among top athletes such as Kobe Bryant, Ray Lewis and Tiger Woods."

Joint replacement surgeries are very invasive, requiring general anesthesia, and have a painful recovery with rehab and scarring. They are also an extremely expensive option. A knee replacement can cost over $40,000, while Regenerative Injection Therapy treatments at Source of Health are all less than $5,000.

SOH provides state-of-the art medical treatment in a comfortable, caring atmosphere, and is available five days a week for patients. The medical center also offers free consultations over the phone and online appointment scheduling for patients' convenience.

"I don't know what exactly you did to my knee, but I haven't had this much relief in over 20 years. I feel like I have my energy back to spend time with my grandchildren again," said one of Dr. Sorr's now pain-free patients.
